Re: Legislative Rule to be Filed

LICENSING AND CONDUCT OF INSURANCE
PRODUCERS AND AGENCIES

TITLE 114, SERIES 2

Question 1: Are regulations required?

Yes, certain life insurance and annuities are also investment products over which OIC shares regulatory authority with the SEC, and federal law requires that a person selling these under a state producer license must have passed one of these FINRA or NASD tests.

Question 2: Is the rule you are proposing controversial? If yes, what are the pros and the cons?

This rule is not controversial.

Question 3: Is the rule you are proposing a copy of another state's rule? A model rule? Custom-drafted?

Custom drafted.

Question 4: What are the really important things you think the Secretary of Tax and Revenue should know about this rule and the issues that surround it?

This testing requirement has been a "desk drawer" rule for years; this amendment simply formalizes it.

BRIEF SUMMARY OF RULE

This amendment to the producer licensing rule would require that any person applying for a license to sell variable life or variable annuity products would have to show that he or she had passed a specified test testing knowledge of federally-regulated securities.

STATEMENT OF CIRCUMSTANCES

Variable annuities and life insurance are regulated as both insurance by the state Offices of the Insurance Commissioner and securities by the SEC. A producer license to sell such products requires a federal securities license as well, and the required federal licenses are dependent on passing (depending on the product) one of two tests, FINRA series 6 and 7. The issuance of a state producer license to sell such variable products has long been subject to proof of passing such test(s), but this requirement has never been formally recognized in rule.
