Brief Description

West Virginia Records Management and Preservation Board County Records Disaster Response and Recovery Fund

Purpose:

The RMPB disaster response and recovery fund is established to assist county government offices in the event of a natural or other disaster such as: fire, flood, earthquake, wind, snow, storm, chemical or oil spill or other water or air contamination, infestation or other public calamity as declared by the governor or state or national emergency responders, requiring emergency action in a county courthouse and/or county building used in the operation of county government and its storage of county public records.

The Disaster Response and Recovery Fund may cover removal and transportation costs of the county public records; temporary storage; recovery costs such as freeze-drying, deodorizing, and reformatting (i.e., microfilming, scanning) county government records; temporary staff for above purposes; shelving and archival storage boxes, or other related expenses approved by the RMPB.

Application Process:

Requests for funding may be made to the Director of Archives and History by initial telephone contact from an elected office holder whose records are damaged and threatened with loss. A verbal description of what records are affected and extent of damage or loss and immediate proposed action to resolve or correct are to be provided. A written letter, photographs and proposed plan of action will be submitted within three days or contact made to request an extension. The director will verify needs and communicate the information to the RMPB members for consideration.

Reimbursement Process:

The maximum reimbursable amount per county, per occurrence is $150,000. Funds are to be restored upon insurance reimbursement (less deductible if required) with a brief report on how funds were utilized in saving county records involved. In the event insurance does not provide reimbursement, the county may not be required to reimburse the RMPB.

Statement of Circumstance

Records Management and Preservation Board County Records Disaster Response and Recovery Fund

In recent memory several county courthouses have been negatively impacted by disasters, most notably fire and floods. To help counties to respond immediately to the crisis at hand, the Records Management and Preservation Board is requesting that a fund be created to assist county governments in the event of a natural or other disaster such as: fire, flood, earthquake, wind, snow, storm, chemical or oil spill, or other water or air contamination, infestation or other public calamity as declared by the governor or state or national emergency responders, requiring emergency reaction in a county courthouse and /or other building used in the operation of county government and its storage of county public records.

The maximum amount per county per occurrence would be $150,000. The fund would be reimbursable (less deductible) if covered by insurance, or in the event that insurance does not provide reimbursement, the county may not be required to reimburse the RMPB.

Funding for the County Records Disaster Response and Recovery Fund will come from county recording fees currently collected by the Records Management and Preservation Board. No new funding will be required to establish the fund.
