Statement of Circumstances

The Dangerous Wild Animal Board has amended this proposed rule due to the numerous public comments received and reviewed. The majority of the comments received were against specific animals including; but not limited to sugar gliders, savannah cats, turtles, hedgehogs, ferrets, geckos, tetra fish, and guinea pigs. There were also numerous comments regarding the pet store industry, and the negative impact the banning of such animals would cause.

The fee structure has also been amended, and a $10.00 application fee added to the rule. After further review of caging standards the board agreed upon referencing the Zoological Association of America (ZAA) Animal Care & Enclosure Standards, 2014, or the most current edition.

The format of the proposed list filed with the Secretary of State's office on July 2, 2014 was simplified for easier understanding. Also, scientific names for animals were used, and exemptions for animals covered under Chapter 19, and Chapter 20 of the West Virginia Code were not listed clearly in the proposed rule. The original list filed for public comment does not appear numbered in the rule. In the amended rule, the list appears numbered to separate the species.
