11.1. Preamble: Licensed professional counselors believe in the inherent worth, integrity, and dignity of each individual and his/her right of opportunity that is limited only by the individual's innate capacity. Their roles commit them to increasing their knowledge of human behavior and they must have freedom of inquiry and of communication to pursue this end, while accepting the responsibility this freedom confers. They recognize the need to eliminate bias, discrimination, and any traditions and practices that impede or deny human rights. Counselors are aware of client vulnerability and under no circumstances will they engage in sexual or intimate relations with the client. It is especially essential that no child be abused in any manner. To protect public confidence, the public behavior of counselors must reflect a high level of moral and ethical integrity. Counselors concede that denial or revocation of licensure in another state, or from another board in West Virginia, or from another credential or jurisdiction, will also make them liable for denial or revocation of licensure by this Board. Proficiency in areas of treatment, objectivity in the application of skills, and concern for the best interests of clients, colleagues, and society as a whole, are ideals for counselors. Therefore, they subscribe to these principles and the Code of 11.2.4. The licensed professional counselor shall under no circumstances be involved with the sexual exploitation of clients.

11.2.6. The licensed professional counselor shall not practice outside the areas of competence and services provided that are listed on his/her professional disclosure statement.

11.2.7. The licensed professional counselor shall not engage in activities resulting in personal gain based upon information accessible solely as a result of the confidential relationship, regardless of absence of harm or detriment to the client.
