Good Afternoon Mr. Ketterman,

Thank you for your interest in the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources agency proposed legislative rules. The filing of legislative rules by any state agency is regulated by the Administrative Procedures Act (APA), Chapter 29 of the West Virginia Code, and establishes procedures, timelines, and types of rules for promulgating by agencies covered by the act. Under that authority, the West Virginia Secretary of State also files rules which include the required formatting of rules proposed by any agency. In that required formatting established by the Secretary of State, all agencies must use strikethroughs to indicate language to be deleted from a rule and underlining to indicate language to be added to a rule. Because we are bound by these rules for formatting, we are unable to publish the proposed rules in any other format.

Your comments are appreciated and, again, we than you for your interest in our agency proposed legislative rules and your comment will become part of the public record.

I would like to be able to read the actual wording of the proposed changes. It is a jungle for me to try and find it. Why can't you just publish it straight up, unless you don't want most of us to read it and maybe reject it. Forgive me if I'm wrong, but it seems like politics as usual. Thank you, Don Ketterman

Good Afternoon Mr. Bates,

Thank you for your comments. Your interest in the rule making process is appreciated and your comments will become part of the public record.

1. Exposed baits are prohibited under the General Trapping Rule (58CSR53). The change made to 58CSR47 makes the use of unexposed baits legal for trapping on public lands.

2 - The prohibition on trapping on the New River Gorge National Park and Preserve is a federal regulation and has been in place several years. The proposed legislative rule (58CSR53) only updates the name of the area to reflect the recent name change relating to the new national park and preserve designation.

Again, thank you for your comments.
